Preparing for the Unexpected on the Farm

Farmers, are you prepared for the unexpected?

Emergencies such as severe weather or medical incidents can occur at any moment. Creating a comprehensive emergency response plan is crucial for the safety and well-being of everyone on your farm.

Start by identifying potential risks and outlining steps for various worst-case scenarios. Train your team on safety protocols, emergency roles, and evacuation routes. Regularly discuss safety measures and ensure everyone is informed about weather alerts and potential hazards in your area.

No one likes to anticipate potential emergency situations. But being proactive and preparing for the unexpected can make all the difference in protecting lives and livelihoods.

This Canadian Agricultural Safety Week, let's make farm safety a part of our everyday. For more information, please visit agsafetyweek.ca.
